Modern-day Miracle?

Perhaps you have been following the story of the small church in the Hague, Netherlands that held a continuous service, night and day, from October 26th through January 30. That means the service was an epic 96 days of around-the clock worship or 2,300 hours. Back in the fall, Bethel Church opened its doors to the Tamrayzan family, asylum seekers from Armenia. The family had arrived in the Hague nine years earlier but had recently been threatened with deportation. Bethel Church became a sanctuary for the refugee family since Dutch law does not allow authorities to enter a church during a service. The service ended last week because the Dutch government modified its immigration policy. The government has said that it will review hundreds of children's asylum applications that had been previously rejected; this could impact up to 700 children of refugee families. Families will be allowed to stay in the Hague while the children's cases are processed. It is expected that many of these children will be eligible for a residency permit.

I heard the Pastor of this small chapel speak of this moment as a miracle. I am sure when Bethel Church opened their doors as a sanctuary to the Tamrayzan family the congregation was uncertain about what would happen. What did happen was this: the church managed to assemble a 24-hour worshipping community drawing clergy and lay people from all over Europe (and a few from the United States) for over three months. The Dutch government responded. For now, the Tamrayzan family and many others may remain in the Hague.

The epic service has ended. May the praying continue. I recommend the prayer "For Cities" found in our Book of Common Prayer:

Heavenly Father, in your Word you have given us a vision of that holy City to which the nations of the world bring their glory: Behold and visit, we pray, the cities of the earth. Renew the ties of mutual regard which form our civic life. Send us honest and able leaders. Enable us to eliminate poverty, prejudice, and oppression, that peace may prevail with righteousness, and justice with order, and that men and women from different cultures and with differing talents may find with one another the fulfillment of their humanity.

Grace and Peace, Julie
